BIOGRAPHICAL SUMMARY OF NOMINEE

(About a hundred words outlining career, and what I will bring to the Society)

I trained as an accountant and have spent my career at the National Audit Office, engaged predominantly in work to assess the economy, efficiency and effectiveness with which various government departments implement government policies. In particular I have done much work with the NHS and the Ministry of Defence, as well as issues related to the government estate. This included periodic appearances at external events and in the media.

I have also been involved in work around corporate policies and the associated legal issues, and work regularly with audit colleagues in organisations across Europe and the US. I am a member of the NAO's commercial and contracting hub, including provision of advice to external bodies.

I have been a member of the ARC for several years and I bring with me from my professional life a transferable set of skills around good financial management and value for money, and I see it as a priority to help bring about a secure long-term financial future for the Society.

I bring the perspective of the enthusiast rather than the architect or academic, with a particular weakness for the radical innovations in mid-20th century church architecture.
